The biggest baseball star of all is sometimes figured cheesy. And that's because he always makes the hardest plays look easy.

The major hardships of old age for the average Paris man is that new dance steps are invented by youthful miscreants just as "Foxy Grandpa" has begun to fancy himself efficient in the ballroom.

A Paris woman who resents criticism of knickerbockers worn by women for country hikes says a man who objects should try walking "in even a short skirt." But suppose the man who tried it should happen to be a Scotchman?

Popular Song Paraphrased

They're forever digging, digging, Digging up the Paris street.
They dig so deep
They dig so low,
There's no telling how far they go.
They're forever digging, digging, Digging up the Paris streets.

A coal strike, a railroad strike, and other things too numerous to mention. But otherwise the outlook is good, save that the weather is trying, and many dogs and a few humans have the rabies, and chiggers infest the blackberry patches. Otherwise, all is well!

A writer on agricultural topics points out that, inasmuch as hogs do not perspire, they must be provided with plenty of shade and a cool wallow, preferably in running water. Human beings who do perspire, must struggle along without running water if unable to pay a plumber $9.00 a day.

Twenty-five years ago a two-hundred pound man rode a thirty-pound bicycle which he pushed with his legs. Nowadays a ninety-eight pound youth drives a 5,000-lb. automobile with twenty-six cent "gas," and the cost of living is a matter upon which he is eloquent. Old-time Paris bicyclists will remember the first part of this!

Within the next day or two it will be possible to determine whether the striking railroad workers went out on a week-end excursion, which nobody will begrudge them, or do actually refuse to listen to saner counsels and propose to place themselves in opposition to the agencies of the Government created for the express purpose of dealing with, and settling, just such emergencies as have arisen.

How mutable is the mood of man, the sport of circumstances. Now, for instance, as we did on July Fourth, you greet the telephone girl at "Central" with a cheery "Hello," and blank dumb silence reigns for twenty-seven long minutes by the watch. Perhaps the operator on that particular section of the switchboard was watching the holiday festivities. Perhaps the line was busy. Anyway, after waiting an interminable time and getting no answer, you reverse the word "Hello," and resign yourself despondently.

Ninety per cent of the gasoline product in the United States is used for operating motor vehicles.

WHEN HARDING WISHES HE WERE NOT PRESIDENT

There are times that I wish for a little while that I were not President of the United States.—President Harding to the Women's Republican Club of New Jersey.

Recent events in President Harding's administration make it possible to specify some of the times when the President would logically, at least, have such a wish. For instance:

When he reflects upon the exposure of his personal appointee, political sponsor and former campaign manager, Attorney General Daugherty, in connection with the pardon of Charles W. Morse, reads the demands in the Republican press for Daugherty's resignation, and the resolutions by Republican Congressmen, for an investigation, noting, as any intelligent man must, the loss of public confidence in Mr. Daugherty as the head of the great Department of Justice.

When he reflects that the seating of his personal friend and associate, Senator Newberry, in a purchased seat has been condemned from one end of the country to the other and recalls the exclamation of the then Senator Kenyon, now Judge Kenyon. "My God! you can never lower the dignity of the Senate after this day."

When he recalls the general public condemnation of his appointment of the notorious Nat Goldstein, who admitted taking $2,500 of the Lowden campaign slush fund when a candidate for delegate to the Republican National Convention.

When he reflects upon the general protest against the leasing of the last of the naval oil reserves to subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Trust after they had been set aside by his predecessors for use of the oil-burning ships in the navy in National defense and the oil-burning ships of the Merchant Marine in the carrying of American commerce, and that the assumed personal responsibility therefor.

When he reflects upon the sorrow and shame he has cast upon the lives of old and faithful employees of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing whom he summarily discharged without warning and to whose pleas for a hearing he refused to listen.

When he recalls his party's promise to reduce taxes and then notes the fact that the only persons who have had their taxes reduced are multi-millionaires and war-profits.

When he recalls the promise of his party to revive industry and trade and then sees a Republican Congress passing a tariff bill which will inevitably destroy foreign trade and work further disaster to American industry—the high protective tariff bill which he himself advocated.

When he reflects upon the returns of the primary elections in Indiana and Pennsylvania containing a repudiation of a Do-Nothing Congress and his own administration by members of his own party.

When he reviews the fifteen months of the Harding administration and finds a minimum of accomplishments almost buried out of sight under a maximum of failure, with his party breaking up into factions, and scandals multiplying in his administration and the influential papers of his own party press arraigned against the principal economic policy of his administration.

But what's the use. When President Harding declares that there are times he wishes for a little while that he were not President of the United States, he simply shares a wish that is common to an ever-increasing number of his fellow-citizens, and which, unless there is great improvement in his administration, of which there are no present signs, threatens to become general.

REPUBLICANS DEMANDING RESIGNATIONS OF OFFICERS

Senator Capper asking for the resignation of Secretary Weeks recalls the fact that the demand by Republicans for the resignations of Republicans in high places in this administration is generally prevalent and is increasing in intensity. The Republican press, or that part of it which still retains its independence and influence with the public, is demanding the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty; the demands for Senator Newberry's resignation have been matters of record ever since his election; the Washington Herald which is still supposed to reflect the views of Secretary Hoover, although he is out of it as an owner, says that the sentiment in Congress is such that it may lead to a demand for Secretary Fall's resignation, which ought also to call for the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Denby on the theory that the tail goes with the hide; the job hunters are strongly in favor of the resignation of Secretary Mellon, which many think would have been forthcoming if he had been overruled in the matter of appointments in the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Still, as President Harding remarked, "Government is a very simple thing after all."

Approximately 12,510 tons of tin or 20 per cent of the total production was used in this country last year for the manufacture of motor vehicles.

CANTRILL WILL SPEAK FOR TOBACCO POOL

Tobacco growers of Barren county will hold a meeting at Glasgow, Monday afternoon, July 17, and Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill will be the principal speaker. Mr. Cantrill will speak for the dark tobacco growers at Owensboro on the fifteenth.

The Glasgow meeting is to be a joint gathering of burley and dark growers, as there are a considerable number of each in that county. The burley growers will form a reorganization of their campaign forces, which signed up the county last fall, and start a drive for the remainder of the growers of burley outside the association.

The dark tobacco campaign in the county is expected to be given impetus by the visit of Congressman Cantrill, who is himself a large grower of burley tobacco and who spoke in all parts of the burley district in behalf of the cooperative marketing plan last fall.

Officers of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association closed Tuesday in observance of the holiday, one of the very few holidays that have been observed since the association started business, because of the large volume of work that has faced the office staff almost every day since the organization of the association under the Bingham co-operative marketing act last January.

ALFALFA SHOULD HAVE PLACE ON MORE FARMS

Despite the fact that alfalfa has a limited distribution in Kentucky, there is a place for the crop on many farms of the State, not as a major field crop, but as a crop for a small area of good land, crop specialists at the College of Agriculture say. It is a legume best suited to rich soils that contain plenty of lime, but most farms have from two to five acres that could be prepared rather easily for growing it. Fall seeding is more satisfactory in Kentucky in view of the fact that spring seedings are troubled with weeds and grasses.

Only two counties in Kentucky, Pendleton and Campbell, have a large area of alfalfa, these two growing half the acreage found in the State or nearly 28,000 acres, according to the 1920 census. The five leading alfalfa counties grow nearly four-fifths of all that is found in the State. These facts emphasize the limited distribution of the crop.

Sweet clover and limestone prepare the way for the successful growing of alfalfa. Both Pendleton and Campbell counties have limestone soils while sweet clover has been extensively grown in both of them, especially Pendleton. Much of it grew wild at first, these plants seeding and spreading over a larger area each year. The sweet clover inoculated the soil and thus prepared it for alfalfa.

There is no hay that is superior to that made from good alfalfa, the specialists claim. It is an excellent feed for stimulating the milk and butterfat production of dairy cows and also makes a good feed for growing stock or for animals that are being put into good condition for showing.

Since three or four crops can be cut in a season from good land, a few acres will furnish a considerable supply of feed. Any farmer who limes his soil heavily and seeds alfalfa on a few acres of his best land can expect good results from the crop. Good drainage, stable manure, phosphate fertilizers and careful preparation of the seed bed also increases the chances for a good stand.

SUGAR EXPORTS MAKE NEW "HIGH RECORD"

Sugar exports from the United States in the fiscal year which ends with June, the fiscal year 1922, will probably exceed those of any year in the history of our export trade. The United States, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, has enormously increased its exportation of refined sugar. This big increase occurred during the war and was in fact one of the consequences of the war which materially reduced the quantity of beet sugar produced in Europe and consequently intensified the demand for Cuban, Porto Rican and Hawaiian cane sugars, most of which are refined in the United States. As a result we have become not only the world's largest exporter of refined sugars, but also the largest refiner of cane sugars, for practically all of the cane sugar of the three islands above mentioned passes from the hands of the producers in the raw state to the refineries of the United States, while the cane sugar of the other chief producer, Java, although not "refined" in a strict sense of the term, is turned out in a condition in which it passes directly to the consumer, making it quite apparent that the sugar refineries of the United States handle larger quantities of sugar than those of any other country in the world.

Rules for Home Making.
Three rules for making a home attractive were recently given to a young married couple by an interior decorator. They were: Provide the necessary utilities, arrange an agreeable color scheme and, the final one, make the place livable.

THE PROPER COURSE

Information of Priceless Value to Every Paris Citizen

How to act in an emergency is knowledge of inestimable worth, and this is particularly true of the diseases and ills of the human body. If you suffer with kidney backache, urinary troubles, or any form of kidney trouble, the advice contained in the following statement should add a valuable asset to your store of knowledge. What could be more convincing proof of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills than the statement of a Paris citizen who used them and who publicly tells of the benefit derived.

Mrs. A. L. Burley, 329 Eighth Street, Paris, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills a few times and from the benefit obtained I can say they are a good reliable remedy. When my kidneys have acted irregularly or my back has been weak and lame I have always found that a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at Ardery's Drug Store relieve the complaint quickly."

The above statement was given November 10, 1916, and on November 12, 1920, Mrs. Burley said: "I haven't changed my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them just as highly to-day as when I gave my former statement."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Burley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEWSPAPER TAX PLEA IS REFUSED

Holding that newspaper plants are not manufacturing establishments within the purview of the legislative act of 1917, Judge Davis W. Edwards denied an application of the Evening Post Company to enjoin the city of Louisville from assessing its plant for city taxes.

Newspaper plants in Louisville were exempted from taxation for city purposes, after passage of the revenue and taxation law at the special session of the Legislature in 1917, on the theory that the establishments contained machinery as specified by the law as manufacturing machinery.

However, the City Board of Equalization recently assessed all of the plants for taxes for the five years they were omitted, and the suit was filed to test the action of the board.

The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals and, pending the outcome in that court, no effort will be made by the city to require payment of the taxes on the assessments made by the board and the City Assessor.

Recently the Legislature passed a law to remedy the defect, if such it is, in the revenue and taxation law of 1917, and in the future the machinery of newspaper plants will be exempted from taxes for other than State purposes.
